

Piston Rod

These are piston rods designed for use in machinery engines. The rods facilitate the transfer of force within the engine.

Product Overview

Piston Rod Overview

These piston rods are engineered for high-performance pump applications. Available in two distinct configurations—clamp type and thread type—they offer versatility for various pumping systems. Designed for durability, these components ensure reliable operation in demanding industrial environments.

Technical Specifications

Available Types

- Clamp type
- Thread type

Application

Various pumps