

Automotive Brake Component

This is a brake component used in automotive brake systems. It contributes to the overall braking performance of the vehicle.

Product Overview

Automotive Brake Component

This automotive brake component is engineered for reliable performance and safety in braking systems. Designed with precision, it meets standard requirements for automotive maintenance and repair. This component ensures consistent stopping power and durability for various vehicle applications.

Technical Specifications

Model Identifier	86
Compatibility Features	Automotive, Braking System, Standard Replacement