

Digital Video Broadcasting Multiplexer

This professional digital video broadcasting multiplexer combines multiple video and audio streams into a single transport stream. It supports various input formats and offers advanced multiplexing capabilities for efficient bandwidth utilization.

Product Overview

Professional Video Integration

The JM VX218 is a high-performance digital video broadcasting multiplexer engineered for the seamless integration of multiple video and audio streams into a singular transport stream. Designed for reliability in broadcasting and cable television environments, it ensures optimal bandwidth utilization for efficient content delivery. The unit features an intuitive front-panel interface, allowing professionals to easily configure, monitor, and manage complex distribution workflows.

Technical Features

Control Features

- Display panel for status monitoring
- Tactile control buttons
- Menu navigation
- Lock/Unlock safety functionality

Model Number	JM VX218
Suitable Applications	Broadcasting, Cable Television, Video Distribution

Operational Status

Status Indicators

Power • Alarm