

Mine Site Temple Construction

This temple construction project has received a Luban Prize. It also carries the title of national environmental protection project.

Project Overview

High-Standard Construction Excellence

This mine site project represents a standard of excellence in infrastructure development, having successfully achieved the prestigious Luban Prize. It is recognized as a national environmental protection project, demonstrating a successful balance between industrial site construction and ecological preservation. The development harmoniously integrates architectural structure with the natural landscape.

Awards and Certifications

Luban Prize, National Environmental Protection Project

Site Characteristics

Location Context

Temple River Mine

Design Integration

Landscape-integrated development